Student Account, Billing Holds and Late Fees

By registering for classes, the student [undersigned parent/legal guardian/sponsor] agrees to pay all account charges in full by the due dates established by the University. Charges may include tuition and fees, housing and meal plan charges, fines and collection fees.

Alaska Pacific University does not send out student billing statements; all student account information is available via the student portal and communicated through the official APU student email account. It is the student's responsibility to regularly check their account to be aware of any unpaid balance.

Accounts not paid by the due dates may be assessed late fees and become subject to an account Hold, which may limit access to grades, prevent future registration and restrict transcript or diploma receipt until the debt is satisfied.

Full details regarding tuition, fees and payment information is found in the APU Catalog, <http://catalog.alaskapacific.edu>.

FERPA Policy

The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA – 20 U.S.C. § 1232g; 34 CFR Part 99) is a Federal law that protects the privacy of student educational records. This law applies to students who are at least eighteen years old or who attend a post-secondary institution, even if they have not reached the age of eighteen. FERPA is intended to ensure students the right to inspect, review, and control access to their educational records maintained by the University.

FERPA begins on the first day of enrollment.

Student under age 18? FERPA still applies. Records are still private.

An Early Honors student may sign a release form.

For purposes of compliance with FERPA, the University considers all students independent. Before information (including billing) can be released to parents or guardians, a FERPA release form signed by the student must be on file in the Registrar's Office. Once filed, this request becomes a permanent part of the student's record until the student instructs the University, in writing, that the release is no longer valid. Release forms are available upon request from the Office of the Registrar.

Full details of the FERPA Policy is found at www.alaskapacific.edu by searching FERPA.
